A Bright Farming Future

The third year of the NFU Agricultural Student of the Year Competition at Kingston Maurward College resulted in a win for Toby Wonacott.

Runners up Dan Westmore, Jessica Read and Oliver Yeatman received trophies from sponsors C&O Tractors and New Holland who were also part of the award's initiation in 2011. C&O and New Holland wanted to support a credible accreditation that would aid young farmers in their future careers.

Toby will be treated to an all expenses paid trip to Agribex 2013, the International Fair for Agriculture, Stockbreeding, Garden, Parks and Green areas, held in Brussels, Belgium. As a part of his prize Toby will have a personal tour of the New Holland stand to see the latest tractors and machinery being launched at the event.

Toby said "I'm really pleased and shocked - I think I did better in the practical tasks than the theory, so it was a surprise that I came first."

The students, all studying for their second year National Diploma in Agriculture, competed against one another in a tense day of tasks including a 50-question exam, livestock, machinery and estate skills, followed by an interview with a panel of judges including the NFU's Rupert Rees and Paul Gould.

NFU Group Secretary Dorchester, Rupert Rees, said: "It's great that the NFU can be involved in this competition. It gives the industry a chance to see the standard of students Kingston Maurward College is producing - and Toby is a credit to the college."

Matthew Holland from C&O Tractors, one of the judges on the panel said; "Once again the students of Kingston Maurward have shown themselves to be a credit to the college, and none more so than Toby, who throughout the judging process showed themselves to be a most deserving winner. On behalf of C&O Tractors I wish Toby a long and prosperous future in the agricultural world."

The winner's trophy was specially designed and crafted for the inaugural Award by Kingston Maurward College blacksmith Simon Grant-Jones and will be passed on to winners for generations.

Kingston Maurward College Principal Clare Davison said: "This is such an excellent achievement for these students, and represents commitment and success not only for our agriculture students but across the college as a whole - it's a real accomplishment for Kingston Maurward College. We'd like to thank C&O & New Holland for their involvement and sponsorship of this event - C & O are very supportive and it's a link we and the students fully appreciate."

Richard Spencer, New Holland Marketing Manager said "At New Holland we are very keen to be involved with this activity, promoting best practice and rewarding achievement in education within the Agricultural sector. I am sure that Toby will thoroughly enjoy the visit to Agribex and be suitably impressed with the New Holland stand."

It's prize giving season at Kingston Maurward. C&O Blandford's newest recruit, part time administrator Charlotte Little has just been awarded the Lyreco Prize for the student with the best overall performance on the OCR Level 2 Diploma in Administration.

C&O Walk the Clarendon Way

On Saturday 28th September a team from C&O will be walking the 24 mile Clarendon Way, which goes between Winchester and Salisbury Cathedrals.

We will be doing this to raise money for Salisbury Hospital's STARS appeal in aid of a new CT scanner for the hospital. The walk was the brainchild of Blandford Group Warranty Manager Andy Blick.

The team will be setting off early and hoping to make it to C&O's Wilton depot in daylight. If you would like to support us in raising money for this important cause we would be very grateful. Donations can be made online at
